MESSAGE

14th November is always remembered as Children's Day. Prayas observes its 8th anniversary on this day. The organisation/ institution has grown over the years. The activities and areas have expanded and, naturally, responsibilities have increased.

Looking back we can derive legitimate satisfaction that most projects have taken off. There were teething problems, especially when it came to handling neglected street children, but there has been noticeable improvement.

The commitment of the Prayas family to promoting the welfare of street children is laudable. I am confident that it will consolidate its gains and continue its good work which has been widely acknowledged.
